

MALAY FAST FOODS (PVT) LTD.

A Legacy of Food. A Future of Flavour.

Company & Brand Research Dossier — Compiled from Public Sources

This dossier is built entirely from publicly available sources (business directories, LinkedIn, delivery platforms, and online ordering pages). Anything not independently verifiable is clearly flagged as unconfirmed. Facts that conflict across sources — such as the founding year — are presented as open questions rather than settled facts, and should be confirmed directly with the Muthalip family / company management before publication.

1. The Parent Business

Malay Fast Foods (Pvt) Ltd.

The strongest available evidence identifies Malay Fast Foods (Pvt) Ltd. as the company behind the Malay Restaurant business and its related concepts. Business directories describe it as a food-and-beverage private limited company operating a chain of restaurants, catering activities, and takeaway outlets, with operations reported around Colombo and in the Maldives.

Older Sri Lankan business directories also record Malay Fast Foods operating from 115 Hill Street, Dehiwala, showing a long association between the corporate name and this location.

Field	Detail
Company	Malay Fast Foods (Pvt) Ltd.
Sector	Food & Beverage / Restaurants
Headquarters / business base	Dehiwala, Sri Lanka
Publicly listed phone numbers	0777 669 008 / 0777 331 240
Historical business address	115 Hill Street, Dehiwala
Current Malay Restaurant address	115 Hill Street, Dehiwala 10350
Malay Restaurant phone	+94 11 777 7999
Online ordering	malayrestaurant.appigo.co

2. Current Leadership

Shuayb Muthalip

Shuayb Muthalip is publicly identified as a Restaurateur and lists Malay Fast Foods (Pvt) Ltd. as his company on LinkedIn. More significantly, the Royal Institute of Colombo publicly introduced him as “Director at Malay Fast Foods (Pvt) Ltd.” This is the clearest public confirmation of a current leadership role within the company.

What could not be verified

- Exact shareholder percentages
- Whether Shuayb Muthalip is the majority shareholder
- The complete list of directors
- The precise legal relationship between Shuayb Muthalip and founder Ayub / Ayoub Muthalip
- The exact ownership structure of each individual brand

Recommended safe wording: “Malay Fast Foods (Pvt) Ltd. is a family-associated food and restaurant business, with Shuayb Muthalip publicly identified as a Director.” The precise family tree should be confirmed with the family before publication.

3. Origins — Rasa Sayang

The story of the group predates Malay Restaurant itself. Public descriptions state that Malay Restaurant inherited the legacy of the generation-old Rasa Sayang, described as an authentic Malay food outlet in Bambalapitiya. This positions the business around heritage and inherited recipes rather than a simple restaurant start-up.

The narrative arc most consistently supported by public sources is:

Rasa Sayang → Ayoub/Ayub Muthalip → Malay Restaurant → Malay Fast Foods (Pvt) Ltd.

Ayub Muthalip is repeatedly credited with maintaining the original recipes while blending Malay cuisine with Chinese, Indian, and Arabic influences. No reliable public source could be found establishing the exact ownership relationship between Rasa Sayang and the Muthalip family, or a full biography of Ayub Muthalip.

4. Founding Date — 1981 vs 1994

Public sources disagree on the founding year, and this should not be published as settled fact until confirmed internally.

Source	Founding Year Given
ClassifyLanka business directory	1981 — “born from a dream,” inheriting the Rasa Sayang legacy
Current restaurant listings / social pages	1994 — most frequently repeated figure
LinkedIn company page	1994, with “over 25 years of experience”

Recommended interim wording for any public-facing material: “Built on a culinary legacy dating back generations, Malay Restaurant developed into the modern Malay Fast Foods business through a commitment to authentic recipes, family values, and continual innovation.” This avoids committing to either disputed date.

5. Business Growth & Expansion

Public directory descriptions state that Malay Fast Foods developed into a company operating restaurants, takeaway outlets, and catering, with activity reported around Colombo and in the Maldives. This suggests a business model that expanded from a single dine-in restaurant into a broader structure combining dine-in, takeaway, delivery, catering, and multiple restaurant concepts.

6. Brand Portfolio

Six brands are visibly associated with the Hill Street / Dehiwala cluster and appear together on common delivery platforms. However, no single public corporate document confirms that all six are formally subsidiaries of Malay Fast Foods (Pvt) Ltd. — the legal/ownership structure of each brand should be confirmed with management before publication.

Brand	Core Identity	Customer Need Served
Malay Restaurant	Malay / Sri Lankan / Asian heritage	Traditional family dining
Cafe Asiana	Asian fusion	Broad, contemporary Asian dining
Shanghai Wok	Chinese / Asian fast food	Affordable delivery
Nelum Flower	Sri Lankan everyday food	Rice & curry / breakfast
Pakistan Darbar	Pakistani / BBQ / Biryani / Arabic	South Asian & grilled food
Darbar Biryani & BBQ	Biryani + BBQ specialist	Delivery-first dining

7. Brand Profiles

7.1 Malay Restaurant — The Heritage Flagship

Address: 115 Hill Street, Dehiwala. Current listings describe it as a halal, family-oriented restaurant with over 2,600 reviews.

Cuisine blends Malay, Sri Lankan, Chinese, Indian and Arabic influences, with signature dishes including lamprais and Malay-style dum biryani.

Menu categories: Malay Specials, Chef's Specials, Chicken, Beef, Seafood, Vegetables, Soup, Shawarma, Meat on Sticks, Sambol & Salads, Desserts, Beverages.

7.2 Cafe Asiana — Contemporary Asian Dining

Address: 97 Hill Street, Dehiwala. Phone numbers publicly listed: +94 11 420 2003 and +94 11 420 2004.

Positioned as a broader, more modern Asian-fusion concept than Malay Restaurant, with a menu spanning soups, fried rice, nasi goreng, noodles, seafood, and wraps.

7.3 Shanghai Wok — Fast-Casual Chinese / Delivery

Address: 97 Hill Street, Dehiwala. Strong delivery-platform presence, with over 1,000 ratings and a 4.6 rating on Uber Eats.

Focused on Chinese-style dishes — fried rice, noodles, chop suey, and chilli dishes — designed for a fast-casual, delivery-first model.

7.4 Nelum Flower — Everyday Sri Lankan Food

Located in the Dehiwala Road / Hill Street area. Over 10,000 ratings/orders displayed on delivery platforms.

Menu centres on rice and curry, kottu, pittu, coconut rotti, breakfast items, and fresh juices — positioned as accessible, everyday Sri Lankan comfort food.

7.5 Pakistan Darbar — Pakistani BBQ, Biryani & Arabic

Address: 93 Hill Street, Dehiwala. Over 4,000 ratings/orders and a rating around 4.3–4.4 on delivery platforms, with hours extending past midnight.

Menu includes Pakistani BBQ biryani, Kabsa rice, kababs, shawarma, kottu, and naan.

7.6 Darbar Biryani & BBQ — Delivery-First Specialist

Visible on delivery platforms alongside Pakistan Darbar and Malay Restaurant. The name signals a focused biryani-and-BBQ concept, well suited to a cloud-kitchen / delivery-first model.

This is the least independently documented brand. Its exact corporate relationship to the group, and whether it operates as a true cloud kitchen, should be confirmed with management.

8. Group Strategy & Positioning

Viewed together, the six brands suggest a deliberate multi-concept strategy rather than six unrelated restaurants: one company reaching different customer segments — heritage dining, contemporary Asian, affordable delivery, everyday Sri Lankan food, and South Asian BBQ/biryani — through separate, tailored identities.

The suggested evolution: preserve tradition → understand customers → introduce new cuisines → create new concepts → use delivery technology → expand the portfolio.

Avoid the word “acquired” in public materials — there is no public evidence that Malay Fast Foods purchased the other five brands outright. Safer wording: “Over the years, the group expanded its culinary portfolio, developing and operating multiple food concepts designed to serve different tastes, occasions, and customer segments.”

9. Proposed Vision, Mission & Objectives

No official Vision or Mission statement could be found publicly. The following are proposed drafts based on the company's history and public activity — not official quotes — for management review.

Proposed Vision

To become a leading multi-brand food and hospitality group in Sri Lanka, recognised for authentic flavours, exceptional quality, innovation, and the ability to bring diverse culinary traditions to every generation.

Proposed Mission

Our mission is to serve exceptional food rooted in heritage while continuously evolving with the tastes and needs of our customers. Through quality ingredients, authentic recipes, responsible hospitality, innovation, and modern food-service solutions, we strive to create memorable dining experiences across every brand we operate.

Proposed Objectives

- Preserve culinary heritage — protect traditional recipes and cooking methods.
- Maintain food quality — ensure consistent taste, freshness, hygiene, and presentation.
- Expand the brand portfolio — develop specialised concepts for different customer segments.
- Strengthen delivery — grow cloud kitchens, takeaway, and digital ordering channels.
- Expand geographically — grow beyond Colombo into new Sri Lankan and international markets.
- Develop people — build a skilled hospitality workforce with consistent standards.
- Innovate — introduce new dishes, concepts, technology, and customer experiences.
- Build a recognised group identity — position Malay Fast Foods as a multi-brand hospitality group.
- Strengthen catering — expand corporate, private, and event catering capability.
- Ensure family-business continuity — preserve inherited values while modernising for the next generation.

10. Suggested Brand Narrative

What began with a passion for authentic Malay cuisine and the legacy of Rasa Sayang developed into a growing food and hospitality business.

Under the vision of the Muthalip family and successive generations of leadership, the business remained committed to its culinary roots while embracing new flavours, new restaurant concepts, and changing customer expectations.

Malay Restaurant became the foundation. From that foundation grew a wider culinary portfolio, bringing together Malay, Sri Lankan, Asian, Chinese, Pakistani, Indian, and BBQ-inspired food concepts.

Today, the group's portfolio reaches customers through traditional dining, takeaway, catering, and delivery-focused operations.

Respect the food. Respect the customer. Respect the heritage. Keep innovating.

11. Outstanding Gaps — Needs Confirmation from Management

The following could not be established from public sources and should be sourced directly from the Muthalip family or company management before being published as fact:

- Exact founder story and the correct founding year (1981 vs. 1994)
- Complete family history and family tree
- Current ownership / shareholding structure
- Exact legal relationship between all six brands
- Launch date of each brand, and which were created internally vs. acquired
- Maldives operations history
- Total number of branches
- Catering history and major contracts
- Awards and certifications
- Original Rasa Sayang history, location, and dates
- Archival family and restaurant photographs, and original menus
- Signature recipe histories
- Official Vision and Mission statements
- Future expansion plans

This document represents the verified public-record foundation for a company profile or website. It should be treated as a working draft, with the gaps above closed through direct interviews with management before anything is published as official company history.
